

Biofilms are fine and highly resistant aggregates of microorganisms that form on surfaces or medical devices, causing two-thirds of infections and posing a serious threat to public health. Here, we provide advanced methods and techniques focused on eliminating biofilms, including electrochemical methods, physical methods, and chemical methods.